About APICS:

The Association for Supply Chain Management (ASCM), formerly known as APICS, is an internationally recognized certification body and the global leader in supply chain, procurement, and logistics management. It aims to equip professionals with the "gold standard" in education, advanced skills, and global best practices to excel in the job market.

CPIM Overview:

Certified in Planning and Inventory Management (CPIM) is a core operational program within ASCM (APICS). Moving beyond broad external supply chains, this certification equips professionals with the exact tools to master inside-the-four-walls manufacturing, streamline master scheduling, and build resilient, cost-effective internal operations.
